Trending Stories Comments So if you're using all your peripheral devices and are sitting in a coffee shop with wi-fi you want to check your messages, Zapicones probably isn't going to cut it. I guess you could have your laptop on the edge of your desk and hope that nobody sits near you... Every month, more and more customers are complaining about not getting any updates to apps that were purchased. This has been going on for several months now and it seems like the app developer has chosen to ignore it. I received an email from one of the creators of ZapIcones saying that he was hoping to make a new version available soon, but at the moment they are busy with school and can't dedicate time to developing it. And besides, ZapIcones can be easily used to change your desktop background, showing you some interesting pictures or help you hide all the desktop content with just a mouse click. I agree with you. I remember I was in an elevator one time and I happened to notice this picture of a girl who looked really cute and a while later I saw the same picture in a magazine. I don't know if that helps, but it does help with privacy. I just purchased ZapIcones from CNET Download.com, because as a college student I was getting tired of typing my password in every time I opened a file. It really does make a huge
