Whitehall civil servants are predicting the health service will need to find £2.3bn of savings over the next five years as part of a £20bn savings drive by 2015. The document, obtained by the Guardian, reveals that the NHS deficit will rise to £2.7bn in 2014-15, when the total deficit is expected to be £9.4bn. By 2015-16, the deficit will have trebled to £2.3bn, when the total deficit is expected to be £14.9bn. The document, which the Department of Health f3e1b3768c
