Troy Vallas Profession: Artist "My whole life I've been an artist. But I was never trained in anything. My life was all about being an artist." Troy Vallas (P.O. Box 458) will be having his first show, "How To Get Away with Murder," opening this month at the Carriage House Gallery in Troy. He has exhibited in the past in Atlanta, Birmingham, Boston, and Atlanta. "It's been a long time coming," said Vallas, the senior instructor at the Troy Visual Arts Program. "When I left the Troy Art Center 20 years ago, I was an artist. My whole life I've been an artist. But I was never trained in anything. My life was all about being an artist." Through the years he has pursued formal training in art. He earned a Bachelor of Fine Arts from Samford University in 1983 and a Master of Fine Arts from the University of the Arts in Atlanta in 2005. While at Samford, he interned at the Atlanta Botanical Garden and worked on sculpture and glass fabrication. At the University of the Arts he studied in the glass department and earned his Master of Fine Arts in sculpture. Vallas began work on the show that will open in Troy in July. The retrospective exhibit examines Vallas' art, which includes his work in both sculpture and glass. Although he is primarily a sculptor, his work in glass is evident as well. He also works with clay, and more recently in ink and acrylic. He is very much a self-taught artist, and one can see a strong influence of Minimalism in his art. "I just did it," said Vallas. "I never had any formal training." He said that he learned his craft through "doing it." While in high school and college he took classes at the Troy Art Center. At the center he learned many techniques and learned to think like an artist. "I learned the value of time," Vallas said. "That's what you need to do if you want to be an artist." In addition to running his business and teaching at the Art Center, he has done
