More About UsA couple of months ago I was thinking about getting a new car and called our local Ford dealer. They were able to give me the following options: Ford Flex Ford Focus Ford Edge Ford Escape The Ford Flex was the first one that caught my eye. It was the top of the line of all four options. It's a 4 door, 5 passenger with about 30 more horsepower than the Escape. My wife was more interested in the Ford Edge because it was her idea and has two rows of seats and will allow for a much larger family. With that being said, I was leaning towards the Ford Flex mainly because of the comfort that it will offer. I went to pick up a vehicle from the dealer last Friday and I was able to drive the Ford Edge. One thing that really surprised me was the fuel efficiency. The car I was driving had an EPA rating of 32 mpg. I was expecting it to be around the 23 mpg range. After seeing that, I knew that I was going to definitely go with the Ford Flex. At my local dealership, they would have had to charge me $3500 extra for the convertible since it is not offered locally but I was able to drive a 2015 Ford Flex Redtop Convertible for $51,400. I'm not saying that I love the blue color or anything but I really like the red top. If you are in the market for a vehicle but don't want to spend too much money, I would recommend that you call up your local dealerships to see if any of the dealerships will give you a good deal. Every dealership has specials that they are running and if you can get a dealer to lower his prices it might be a good deal for you.
