ECAD (Electronic Computer-Aided Design), a new CAD system developed for electronic products by Hewlett Packard, allows AutoCAD users to design and analyze the entire electronic product. APIs AutoLISP AutoLISP is an extension language for AutoCAD. The compiler and execution environment are part of AutoCAD and so is a primary way to implement or extend AutoCAD capabilities. AutoLISP allows you to customize AutoCAD to suit your business needs. Visual LISP Visual LISP is a proprietary scripting language that allows you to automate various functions in AutoCAD. You can also import data from popular data-import and data-export tools such as Exel, DB2, Excel, Access, dBase, Paradox, SQL Server and VB. Visual LISP is similar in design to Visual Basic, but supports AutoCAD objects and commands. Visual LISP was discontinued in January, 2012. Visual LISP was similar to Visual Basic but used an entirely different syntax. For example, Visual LISP has additional support for object-oriented programming techniques. Also, the object classes available in Visual LISP were more in-depth than those available in Visual Basic. VBAs AutoCAD supports VBA, a Microsoft Macro scripting language. VBA is a common scripting language used for programming. VBA for AutoCAD is used for programmatic control of AutoCAD functionality, including command-line execution of AutoCAD. VBA for AutoCAD is similar to VBA for Microsoft Office, but with a few differences in syntax and object model. Microsoft has removed the support for VBA and the AutoCAD VBA scripting API in AutoCAD 2016. You can download a VBA add-on for AutoCAD 2011 from Microsoft's web site. NET and ObjectARX ObjectARX (Object ARCHitecture eXtension) is a C++ class library available for AutoCAD. It allows the customization of the user interface, adding tools, macros, and other features. It is used to build products such as AutoCAD Architecture and AutoCAD Electrical, as well as third-party AutoCAD-based applications. AutoCAD Architecture is the object-oriented version of the original AutoCAD. This product is based on the ObjectARX 5b5f913d15
