A Russian hunter has found 15 dead lions scattered around a natural gas site in South Africa, according to the Guardian. The extensive collection of antlers, paws and fur suggest the animals died over the course of last month when the site's owners, South African natural gas company Exxaro, closed the site's well for maintenance. Nigerian environmental activist and activist Ivor Greenwood found the carcasses after an eagle alerted him to the site by honking in protest. What's more, the lions are still there, according to Greenwood, who says he's returned to the site several times over the past few weeks and has seen the bodies of lions but never any signs of violent death. "An employee was killed here by a lion two weeks ago, and that is the reason we are concerned," Greenwood told RFI in a phone interview Wednesday, shortly before the carcasses were discovered. "We are not saying Exxaro killed these lions, but we think these are dead
