I'm partnering up with a new literary journal! While I was on my travels, I was nominated for a Lucille Award! (And now I'm aware of how lucky I am to have been nominated, I'm also glad I didn't win). I am very excited to announce that I've accepted a position with the new journal: 'BOMB', A Journal of Contemporary Verse. Edited by Canadian poet Joyce Nicholson, and publishing artists from a variety of different languages. The journal will be a quarterly print journal of contemporary poetry, with the goal of being an international platform for contemporary poets. They are looking for poets who don't necessarily want to publish their poetry in a book, but rather as a direct call to their audience. I am thrilled to be working on this project with Joyce and the other poets on the staff, and we're looking forward to working on the project! The first issue will have an interview with Joyce about the journal, and she'll be discussing and discussing some of the challenges of publishing a new journal. (And I'm not going to lie, I'm completely flattered to be interviewed). There will be an announcement here on the site shortly! And as a reminder, the editorial board of BOMB are looking for submissions, so if you have any poetry for consideration, I'm happy to pass them along to Joyce! *Note: you don't have to have any book published to apply, as it's all about the application, and the quality of the poetry itself. Joyce's interested in sharing with the world the incredible voices that are at the fore of the contemporary poetry scene.Q: How to export css and js file from another folder in angular 7 I want to export css and js files from another folder in angular 7 here I am getting error TypeError: Cannot read property 'css' of undefined This is my folder structure A: I have two suggest, one way is by using webpack plugin First install it using npm install -g webpack-cli After Install web
