About Recipes will be written in the format they are given to you by the trainer; they are not prepared in the usual fashion of the instructor. Instructors are also encouraged to create and give PDF of the program at their discretion, and when it is included in the packed training, so that you do not lose it. Module 1: Getting Started Software is a full featured command line interface, and needs knowledge of the command line commands. The course is designed to be followed on Linux or Mac OSX. Created By: Louis. Running all programs The course will run all programs from the program folder (tools/utilities/language) in addition to the examples file. It is important to understand that the example files are complete programs in their own right, and complete how to complete the exercises if you run them. The sample input and output files in the program folder are to be used for testing purposes. Network access Internet access is crucial to this course. Install to a local drive This is the course in a nutshell. You will use the programs in this program folder; there will be a program every 30 minutes. The programs will be run sequentially, one after the other, with no interactive sessions. To run the entire program folder, all programs will be run in sequence, and the instructor will explain the programs to you. The instructor will be there for you on the chat room, so that you can ask any questions about the course. This module is designed to be completed in about an hour to an hour and a half.

Module 2: Grammar Instructor: Louis This lesson is designed to make you understand the concepts behind grammar as well as understand more than twenty different concepts. You will start from the lesson on the screen,

Joan Carpenter McKinney was born on November 2, 1940, in Lawrence, Kansas. She met her husband in California and they soon moved to West Haven, Connecticut where they have lived ever since. Joan went to Connecticut College and received her degree in education. She returned to school to become a nurse and was licensed in 1975. She retired as the Head Nurse of the Surgery Division of the Cleveland Clinic as well as the Head Nurse of the Emergency Room and the Adult Day Care unit at that time. She loved being a nurse and is recognized as one of the few female nurses in history that went through all five of the great wars. She won an Emmy for working in the Emergency Room of a hospital where a World War II plane was shot down. She is credited with saving the life of one of the six crew members. She retired in 1987. Joan was very involved in the community and would go to special needs schools and schools with bad classrooms and inspire her students. She would tell them that, "Any child can be a star if they are willing to try". Joan was an avid reader and would read her favorite authors, including Jane Austen. Joan was a beautiful artist and she worked as the nurse manager at one of the hospitals where she used her art to represent the personalities of the patients. She worked at the Rothman Hospital in New York. From there, she went to teach the American Red Cross Basic Life Support course. From there, she had her own free-lance job because that was her passion. She was a makeup artist for several years and her work was featured in National Geographic magazine. Joan's life took a sharp turn
