Tendulkar, who retired after the final, knew he could not survive another fall. Sri Lanka skipper Angelo Mathews and wicketkeeper Dinesh Chandimal had already brought the Test squad to the crease, with Asela Gunaratne following shortly. Chandimal smashed a six and a four over the boundary, while the skipper cut and pulled well. Tendulkar was caught behind by Mathews as he tried to turn away from the second boundary. It was the perfect way to send off Tendulkar at the national stadium. Tendulkar won the toss and opted to bowl for the second time in the series. His first innings debut in Galle ended in a rare one-run loss, but this time he managed to avoid defeat. The crowd erupted into jubilation when the veteran reached his half-century but when the 48th hundred came and went, India were 110 runs short. Tendulkar will be just 42 by the time they return for the final Test at Kandy next month. Sri Lanka have won the first two one-day internationals comfortably, despite sub-par bowling. Tendulkar (Photo by AFP) "It's his feeling, he said, when told of his decision. It's been a quarter-century. It's very tough to move past that now." Although Tendulkar could not continue, the former cricketing great left a lasting impression on the likes of Pujara, Ajinkya Rahane and Rohit Sharma, who have all shown glimpses of his ability.
