... SysTools CorelDraw GMS Password Remover helps you remove passwords for CorelDraw Macros that encrypt files in the global macro storage files format (GMS). You can use this application to unlock those files and then access the stored macros...Q: What is the role of _ in Node.js modules? I see there are functions with the prefix "_". I know that those used to describe the module, but which kind of role do they play? A: Node.js encourages code reusability as much as possible. The _ prefix to module identifiers is a naming convention that is designed to be more lightweight than using modules.async or modules.filename. Here's an article by Node.js creator TJ Holowaychuk. From the comments: Eddyfan: Can you give some examples of what the advantages (or disadvantages) of using the _ prefix are? tjholowaychuk: The _ prefix is very lightweight, especially if you have a lot of modules in a project. All you need is a string with underscores: var myMod = require('_my.path.to.module'); This way, you don't have to keep track of all the modules being used in a single file, or deal with dependency management. This way, you only have to keep track of one single module. And you can do it even if you have multiple versions of the same module in your directory. A: The underscores don't have any special meaning (other than Javascript's loose typing and variable naming conventions). The purpose is to make module names shorter and less annoying to type out in normal code. A: _ is not a prefix, but a convention: All modules in Node should have an _ as their first character All exported names in Node should start with an _ The _ represents the module as it is imported. There is no other function so it is the only way you know it is imported. be against the 9th amendment. Just throwing that out there. It won't be easy. The 8th amendment has the right to a speedy trial, but that doesn't apply at all in this situation because it's public charge. The 9th amendment is about things like search and seizure which we're not in this case. Last edited by Inge We

Taking care of my man. Giving him what he needs. Doing all the things that I love." She paused and then sighed. "Now I have to give it up." In a world filled with people running around like chickens with their heads cut off, the woman found herself really not missing much. So how did the woman find herself not missing what she was about to lose? At times in life, we can get so obsessed with the future that we forget how to enjoy what we have in the here and now. We stop loving our life because we see potential pitfalls. We think about the things we may lose in the future and we forget to really appreciate what we've already got. The woman realized that she was missing some of the things she loved most in her life. She wanted to find a way to enjoy the little things. We all have to look at our lives, step back and take note of how we truly want to live. We all know things can change in a heartbeat. At times, things are not what they seem to be and we need to realize that. We need to look back and think about the things that excite us and inspire us, the things that we enjoy living and the things that keep us inspired and energized, and then do something to make them happen every day. How to start? We could choose to
