I'm trying to make a help menu that will have a link for each element (in the table in the administration panel), with a name. In other words, in the admin panel, if there's a certain field, there'd be a button or something that expands the field, so that the user could write the name. A: I would use AJAX for this. The admin is paginated so you don't want the page to refresh and you don't want to always run the total queries. The normal way to do this would be to just put a link above the page,

Associations of CRP levels and folate status with impaired fasting glucose or diabetes mellitus in Chinese healthy older women. Serum C-reactive protein (CRP) and folate status might modify the risk of diabetes mellitus (DM) in the elderly. The aim of this study was to assess the associations between CRP levels, folic acid status and the risk of impaired fasting glucose (IFG) and DM. Blood samples were collected from 1032 Chinese women aged 55-85years. Subjects with a history of diabetes, cancer, arthritis or hepatic disease were excluded. The serum concentrations of CRP and folic acid were measured using ELISA. Body mass index (BMI), blood pressure and the levels of fasting plasma glucose (FPG) and 2-hour post-load plasma glucose (2hPG) were measured. According to the American Diabetes Association (ADA) 2010 diagnostic criteria, the women were classified into four groups: DM (n=111), IFG (n=181), normal glucose regulation (NGR, n=733) and impaired glucose regulation (IGR, n=56). The mean CRP level was significantly higher in the IFG group ( $3.0 \pm 1.5$ mg/L) compared with the NGR ( $1.2 \pm 1.1$ mg/L) and IGR ( $1.0 \pm 0.7$ mg/L) groups. The multivariate logistic regression showed that the odds ratio (OR) of IFG was 1.54 (95% confidence interval (CI)=1.09-2.19
