Introduction to Photoshop (Part 1) Introduction to Photoshop First, let's quickly review the differences in versions. The final release of Photoshop Elements was version 12.0.1. It was released June 30, 2017. Here is the Adobe Photoshop version chart: Adobe Photoshop (CS) Adobe Photoshop (CS6) Adobe Photoshop Elements (12.0.2) Adobe Photoshop Elements (11) Adobe Photoshop Elements (10) Adobe Photoshop Elements (9) Adobe Photoshop Elements (8) Adobe Photoshop

However, this post will be focused on Photoshop Elements, so we will ignore this newer version. Some of you may remember that the full-featured Photoshop used to be $700. Photoshop Elements was released about 20 years ago at $250. It was introduced by Adobe as part of their “Creative Suite” bundle which also includes Acrobat, Illustrator, and Dreamweaver. The graphic editing program is free, but the rest of the suite requires a license. Adobe did this to introduce Photoshop Elements as an alternative to more expensive programs, while still offering professional editing features. Not only did the price drop, but Photoshop Elements introduced much of the same functionality as the full version. It was originally released in the US. Later, Adobe released it worldwide. In this post, we are only focusing on Elements. What you will get with Adobe Photoshop Elements Over the years, Adobe has continued to expand the usability and features of Photoshop Elements. Q: Image is looking blurred while using Vue 2 and vue-loader I am new to vue and recently got started with vue.js. I am trying to build simple UI using vue.js and while creating a image preview component I am getting a blurred image instead of the actual image. Here is the component code: `import Vue from 'vue' export default Vue.extend({ name: 'ImagePreview', props: ['img'], data: function() { return { previewSource: null } }, mounted: function() { var url = this.img.src this.previewSource = new Promise(function (resolve, reject) { var $img = $("") $img.attr("data-src", url) $("body").append($img) $img.load(function () { resolve(this) }).error(function () { console.log("image not loaded") reject(this) }) }) }) I am rendering it using: Please help me to get the source image. A: I have solved the issue. The issue was due to missing of the query string in the base url. (Not properly working) In Vue I am rendering the image using: Instead of The present invention relates to`

Q: Is it possible to access the "Process" model, outside of `django.contrib.auth.models`? I am in the process of writing an app that uses an external API. The idea is that I'd like to pull in a variety of data in the form of dictionaries, and work with them programmatically in Python. What I'm working with currently is `django.contrib.auth.models.User`, which is incredibly powerful but also cumbersome and can be limited if I want to use it programmatically. For instance, setting the user's password doesn't directly set the `encrypted_password` value in the user's record. So, every time I access an object, I need to go through all of its fields and set them to the value of their corresponding objects (as in something like `self.user.encrypted_password = self.user.password`) What I'd like to do instead is be able to access the process module, since it already does that kind of functionality and is populated with much of what I need. I'm thinking that'd be the more direct route to getting what I need done. I figured, if it's in there, I can use the same pattern of using `self.process.object_name` and it would populate the values in the structure. I've tried to do this with no luck. Is it possible? Here is the model where I am trying to access the process object: `class Goal(models.Model): type = models.ForeignKey(GoalType) goal_id = models.CharField(max_length=255) goal_description = models.TextField() def __unicode__(self):`

return "%s" % self.goal_description A: It is not possible to get a normal user instance using the ProcessModel, but you can use the process_user() method on the UserModel. In my case, I need to use the ProcessModel to filter all instances of the ProcessModel that have an active associated instance of the UserModel. I can do this by simply stating: from django.contrib.auth.models import User as AuthUser ... PROCESS_USER = AuthUser() PROCESS_USER.process_user = self.user This makes it so that I
