Choosing a good lighting setup The right lighting setup enables you to expose and capture the shadows and highlights that you need to get into your image. The most important decision is to make sure you can capture the light in any conditions that are encountered during your shoot. The best lighting options include open shade with diffused light coming through the canopy, sidelighting with a light source behind the subject, and background lighting. The choice of lighting should depend on the subject. If you're photographing a candle, sidelighting is the best lighting choice. If you want to make the surroundings look as though you're photographing on a bright, sunny day, using a diffuser to cut down on the direct light coming into the scene is the best choice. If you want to pose your subject in the shadow of the tree, open shade is the best choice. Photographers often prefer to use open shade to reduce the bright highlights on a subject.

Q: Why does it show "cannot find symbol" on methods that are there? As seen on the image, the methods getImageDate and getCoverImage are not recognized when i try to call them? I can't understand why. I don't get any error from Eclipse itself, the red squiggly underlines the methods, but it also gives me no compilation error. Anyone knows why? I am using Eclipse Luna 4.4.1 and Java 1.8.0_51. A: Most likely the red squiggly is the missing return statement. The problem is that your methods don't end with a return statement. The IDE won't compile those lines for you. You need to explicitly return the result of the method invocation. Also, since you use getColor and getDate instead of getImageColor and getImageDate, it might be that you want to pass these objects as parameters to the method. Here is a corrected version of your code (I simplified the code but you should be able to figure out what is going on without much effort): public static void main(String[] args) { changePic("/resources/images/1/13.jpg"); } private static String getCoverImage(String path) { try { BufferedImage image = ImageIO.read(new File(path)); return image == null? " " : image.toString(); } catch (Exception e) { e.printStackTrace(); return null; } } public static void changePic(String path) { String coverImage = getCoverImage(path); String imageDate = getImageDate(path); int color = getColor(path); Image image = ImageIO.read(new File("resources/images/" + getFolderName(path) + "/" + path)); if (coverImage!= null && image!= null) { BufferedImage coverImage = ImageIO.read(new File(coverImage)); BufferedImage image =

What You Should Know Before Upgrading To Financing Many people looking for a new or used automobile make their decision based on price, image and sheer practicality. This can be a mistake, especially if you lack sufficient financial credit. If the thought of financing your dream vehicle makes you cringe, then check out these tips before spending your hard earned money on a shiny new car. 1. Shop Around Before you settle for a new car or vehicle, first investigate your financing options to see what the terms are like and what the payments will actually cost you. You may be able to avoid interest and pay it off over a period of time, or you may have to finance the vehicle immediately. When you're planning ahead, financing becomes much simpler. There are a lot of advantages to financing a car or vehicle before you even own it. 2. Consider Lowering The Down Payment It may be wise to try to get as much of a money down as possible to help offset your monthly payments. Depending on the type of car you purchase, you might only have to put down a few hundred or a few thousand dollars. In the case of a vehicle that's leased or financed through a dealership, you may be able to reduce the amount of money you borrow and still qualify for the type of financing you're looking for. 3. Calculate Your Monthly Payments It's good to know what you're going to be paying as you look to finance a car or vehicle. Take a look at how much you can afford to pay in one month and determine whether you will have the means to cover the payments. It's generally advisable to not go over the credit limit of your current credit card, but if you can afford the payments, you should still be able to add a few more hundred dollars to the budget for those late night sushi and taco runs. 4. What's Your Credit Score? Your credit score is a summary of how well you handle your finances. A good score will help you get a better rate on a car or other loan, but a low score may mean that you need to take a closer look at your budget to see if there is any way you can make payments. 5. Be Realistic If you know you're not ready for the full responsibility of a car or vehicle, you may want to take into account the option of leasing. If you
